This is a story about a deep love that is shared between parents and their child. Sharing wisdom from one generation to another is so important. As parents, our hope is that our words will be embraced and stored away until they are needed. I wanted this colorful story to be a springboard that allows families to talk about memories and life lessons with their children. There is certainly no more enjoyable close to a busy day than sharing a special story with your child. By visually seeing these simple thoughts, together with fun, lively characters, children will make a meaningful connection and understand that they, in their own way, can truly make a difference in their own lives and in the lives of those around them. They will celebrate their own uniqueness. We should be enjoying life each and every day.

In You Be You, the companion book to Only One You, inquisitive Adri has been out exploring our colorful world on his own. Join him as he notices that there are so many fish in the deep blue sea and that each fish has something special to share. The pages are filled with brand new fish that bring the message of opposites, diversity and acceptance to life. We will know that beauty is all around us if we only stop, observe and truly listen. You Be You inspires readers to always be themselves.

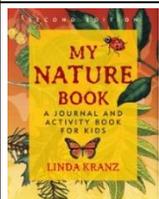

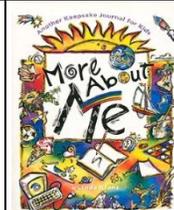

Maximillian, a curious black and white snake is deciding where he fits in. As he makes his way to Red Mountain he is sidetracked by the happy sounds of a lively group of friends and Marcus' grandfather as they laugh, test their endurance, appreciate the leadership of a friend then stop and rest to enjoy the beauty around them. With the help of his grandfather, Marcus changed his way of thinking and he made new friends. Maximillian quickly leaves the unpleasant mountain top. On his way down from Red Mountain he meets two new friends who also didn't like it up there. New friendships and feelings of acceptance have everyone excited as they head out for a day of fun!

Love You When is a story that reassures a child that they are indeed thought of throughout the course of a busy day. The end sheets offer more examples of times when thoughts of your child come to mind. Readers have said that the message in this book spans not only to the special love of a child, the message also speaks to adults. Read the book for yourself and see who you think of as you turn the pages. Life passes in the blink of an eye — therefore we must express our love. Parents, children, husbands, wives, grandparents, aunts, uncles, siblings, friends, nature lovers, and rock collectors... readers of all ages will find their own special meaning inside the pages of this colorful, thought provoking book. So give this book to the special loved ones in your life, and they will share with you all the times they think to themselves how much they love you, when...

Young writers will be inspired to fill up the pages in this colorful book, with questions like: If you could visit the mountains, the desert, or the seashore, which would you chose and why? Name something that you have done that makes you proud. When you lie in your bed at night, just before you drift off to sleep, what do you think about? Describe your happiest day. Also included are blank pages for drawing and empowering statements. This journal once filled will hold memories of childhood that might otherwise be forgotten.

True writers who were excited to fill up the pages in the first journal will want to continue writing and exploring topics like this one: Make a list of things you want to do when you get older. Keep adding to this list. Write down the cost of a first class stamp, a gallon of gas, a ticket to the movies, the price of a newspaper, the cost to rent your favorite video. Ask your parents to help you with other items your family buys. It will be interesting to see how prices have changed when you are older. Everyone has an imagination. What do you like to imagine?

This journal encourages you to get creative with "thought starters" that provide inspiration to help your words flow easily onto the pages. There are also plenty of unlined pages for you to draw whatever you want and pages for you to include some of your favorite photographs. You'll find recipes for snacks that you can take with you on the trail. Plus several activities that you can do at home. Once completed, this journal will be a window into your own special time outdoors. Rereading your entries will undoubtedly remind you and your family to revisit some of your favorite places once again. Studies show that time spent in nature will allow us all to be more relaxed, more understanding in difficult or stressful times and better able to focus on our daily tasks once we are back home again in the midst of our busy routines. So what are you waiting for? Grab your journal and go out and explore! P.S. Once adults look through My Nature Book they too want to fill up the pages in this journal.

Look inside these pages and you will find inspiration, step-by-step instructions, and loads of ideas for how to transform nature's canvas into a truly unique form of art. Learn how to create hand-painted flowers, hearts, animals, food, trains, rocket ships and pretty places on the surface of rocks. Pocket rocks with meaningful words painted on them can be inspiration on the go. The ideas are limitless. Choose a rock and let that be your canvas. Let's Rock teaches and inspires artists of all skill-levels to try their hand at the joyful art of rock painting. Brand new ideas and old favorites appear in this updated edition for today's rock artists. As a bonus, patterns for the designs inside the book are included in the back. What are you waiting for? Let's Rock!
